Good Morning I.S.201! I'm Hana from class 731, and I am this Thoughtful Thursday on behalf of the S.E.A.L team.

Today we are excited to celebrate National Children's Day, a day dedicated entirely to YOU, your energy, your curiosity, your talents, and the amazing ways you make our school come alive. Children's Day reminds us of the importance of imagination, play, learning, and growth. It's a chance to appreciate how children see the world with creativity and hope, and how your ideas and questions help shape a brighter future for everyone.

As we celebrate, remember that today is about recognizing your strengths, your dreams, and the unique person you are becoming. Whether you love reading, exploring, building, creating, playing sports, or discovering new things, each of you brings something special to IS 201. National Children's Day is a reminder that your voices matter, your dreams matter, and you matter.

Like Marie Curie, today's affirmation is: "I show courage by doing what I know is right."

Thank you for listening and have a Terrific Kids Thursday 😊
